Rain Drenches City, County Monday

TEMPERATURE HERE SUNDAY REACHES 97

Employees of Canning Factories Let Out Because of No Materials.

The value of Monday's rain could not be estimated by farmers and canners here, but they said that the rain will do a world of good for the late pea crop, and the corn and wheat.

According to Dr. Hartley Clarke, United States weatherman, there has been no rain of any proportion, since the eighth day of March. Some of the older residents recall such a drought in 1887, but none since that time.

Sunday was the hottest day of the year, with the highest mark of the mercury set at 97 degrees. The lowest temperature for the last 24 hours was 64.

The rain Monday followed a week of parching, blistering, torrid winds, which have swept over the grain and corn fields unmercifully. Saturday the highest temperature was 94 degrees, Friday 95 degrees, Thursday 93 degrees, and Wednesday 87 degrees.

The canning factories of this vicinity laid off all of the extra help usually employed at this rush time of the year.

During every summer many school students, both college and high school are given employment in the canning factories, but with the crop burned out by lack of rain and with the final stroke in the pea crop's destruction being frost, these men have no employment this summer.

One of the factory representatives Monday stated that only the men employed the year around are now working and others will have no work until the late pea crop ripens and corn is available.

The streams of the county are lower than the usual August level, and the truck gardens have suffered great damage because of the drought. Although rain was forecast all last week, and every old fashioned sign of rain had been seen, no rain fell.

It was reported Monday that South Bloomfield was blessed with a comparatively heavy rainfall early Monday. Pastures in the county are almost completely burned out and one Pickaway-co farmer stated in this city Saturday night that he has nothing on which to feed his stock. Many of the farmers are disposing of their stock because they have nothing to feed.

School Teacher Wins Pilot's License

Helen V. Cox, former Hagerstown, Md., school teacher, and now serving as an airplane saleswoman, has been granted her transport pilot's license. There is no higher rating for an airplane pilot. She is one of the twenty-three women in the country to be granted the transport pilot's license.

WOMAN HAS LEG BROKEN IN ACCIDENT

Ford Crashes Into Parked Pontiac North of City Late Sunday Night

A Mrs. Brown suffered a broken leg, Herbert Johnson and William Miller of this city escaped injury and Edwin Volmar of Chillicothe, suffered numerous cuts and bruises at 11:30 p. m. Sunday when the Ford sedan driven by Volmar collided with the Pontiac owned by Miller, two and one-half miles north of this city.

The Volmar car is said to have been following the Miller Pontiac from Columbus when the Pontiac came to a sudden stop on the right side of the road, the Ford piled into the rear end of it, turning the Pontiac over in the ditch. The Ford went through the fence on the right side of the road and continued into the field for a distance of about 50 feet according to witnesses.

Both cars were hauled to this city.

Volmar, who suffered a deep cut over his left eye, was treated by Dr. A. W. Holman. Mrs. Brown was taken to a Columbus hospital.

STOCK MART PRICE DOWN

Steady Pressure Results In Decline—Gas War Also Causes Slash.

NEW YORK, June 16—Steady pressure on the market in the first hour today resulted in a further decline in prices of the market favorites in practically every section of the list. With the tariff matter settled, Wall Street gave more attention to the unfavorable second-quarter's operating records and the discouraging drop in prices of copper, wheat and other commodities.

The first gun was fired in a new California oil price war by the slashing of gasoline prices in San Francisco 3 cents a gallon.

The over-inflated utilities stocks, which according to the best Wall Street view have been "discounting" the best that could happen in the industry for four or five years at least, dropped back in the lower level on the present move.

Electric Power lost nearly 4 points at 10. Consolidated Gas was off 4 points and losses of 1 to 2-1/2 points were recorded for the representative stocks in this list.

COLORED MAN HELD

William Kerber, colored, is being held in jail facing a charge of intoxication. He was arrested by Officer Fitzpatrick and Deputy Powell Sunday night.

ALIBI MADE DEFENSE IN TREGO CASE

Crist Represents State; Lamb, In His First Case, For Defendant.

It was indicated in his opening statement by Attorney Sterling M. Lamb that an alibi will be the defense of Wesley Trego, Commercial Point, in his trial for stealing chickens from the chicken house of Frank Hudson, Scioto-twp farmer, late on the night of Feb. 22, 1930.

Prosecuting Attorney Emmitt L. Crist represents the state in the case.

SELECT JURY

The jury to hear the case was obtained in a very short time and includes Mrs. John Wolford, Miss Annalee Bennett, Fred Palm, W. H. Reed, Mrs. R. E. Dennis, Mrs. Homer Wright, Mrs. Bess Henderson, William Reid, Mrs. Dudley Courtright, Mrs. Harry Dunlap, E. M. Ridgway and Steve Evans.

Trego was arrested by Deputy Sheriff John G. Ward and state district agents while they were conducting a raid at the home of Edgar Davidson, Scioto-twp man, who pleaded guilty to possessing intoxicating liquor and was sentenced to the Cincinnati workhouse under a fine of $1,000 by Judge E. A. Brown. The affidavit charges that Trego with Don 'Skinny' Miller, drove up to the Davidson house with the back end of the automobile driven by Miller carrying chickens, which it was learned later were stolen from Frank Hudson.

RESULTS OF TARIFF BILL ARE AWAITED

Politicians Sit Back and Watch Reaction After Hoover's Announcement.

WASHINGTON, June 16—Business men and politicians sat back today and waited the first effects upon industry and commerce—and the pocketbook of the man-in-the-street of President Hoover's unprecedented Sunday announcement he would sign the so-called Hawley-Smoot-Grundy "billion dollar" tariff bill, despite its possible "unequalities and inequitable compromises."

Admittedly, the executive announced he would approve the measure even in advance of its physical receipts in an effort to stop further business depressions as reflected in stock market fluctuations. Politicians now are waiting to see whether the country at large will approve his gesture, or whether, through blief, votes and otherwise, it will favor the thought he should have vetoed it on the ground it will result in high living costs all around.

PLANES USED IN HUNT FOR MISSING MEN

Prominent Toledo and Lucas Co. Men Lost in Lake Erie—Boat Is Found.

TOLEDO, O., June 16—Airplanes, coastguard boats and at least a dozen private yachts joined in search of Lake Erie today to solve the disappearance of eight men, seven of them prominent in Lucas-co business and political circles, from a high-powered speedboat between Toledo and Put-in-bay Island.

BOAT IS FOUND

The speedboat, a former rum-running craft, was found floating two miles west of Sister Island yesterday by Walter Horley of Toledo. The craft was empty of occupants, its gas tank was dry, the motor in gear, and the throttle open.

The seven missing men are:

Arthur Kruse of the Kruse-Burman Mortuary Co., undertakers of Toledo.

John Myers, wealthy Toledoan and owner of the craft.

Charles R. Nauts, United States Internal Revenue Collector of the Toledo district.

Herbert W. Nauts, his brother, attorney and active in Lucas-co politics.

Franklin R. Jones, former member of the Lucas-co board of elections.

Frank Miller, former city water commissioner of Toledo.

Henry Hainbush, assistant county engineer of Toledo.

John Lukasz, expert boatman and pilot of the craft.

THE EIGHT MEN SET OUT SATURDAY FOR THE ANNUAL ELKS' OUTING AT PEELE ISLAND. THEY WERE LAST SEEN WHEN THEY ROUNDED THE EXCURSION STEAMER, GREYHOUND, AT THE TOLEDO YACHT CLUB, WHERE 600 ELKS BOARDED THE BOAT FOR THE PICNIC.

Two theories were advanced as to the disappearance of the eight men: first, that they were traveling at full speed and became twisted in a wave, or struck a log that tossed them all out into the lake; second, that they may have stopped at an island for repairs and that their boat, left in gear and with the throttle open, swished out into the lake, leaving them marooned.

The speed of the craft—a 35 foot ex-rum-running boat was approximately 50 miles per hour, it was said. Boatmen declared that if the occupants of the craft were thrown into the lake, they would have been drowned.

The propeller of the derelict craft, examination proved, was bent and the windshield was broken. Only a small amount of gasoline was found in the auxiliary tank of the boat. The regular tank was empty. A man's hat and three life preservers were found in the craft also.

Churches, Civic Organizations and Officials Want Slayer of Reporter.

The resignations were the results of demands which were voiced throughout the city following a series of gang killings which culminated one week ago in the death of Alfred ("Jake") Lingle, veteran police reporter.

Deputy Commissioner John Alcock was appointed immediately as acting commissioner of Police. Chief of Detectives John Egan became acting deputy commissioner of detectives.

Russell did not sever his connection with the police department entirely, retaining his rank of captain. He was deputy commissioner when appointed commissioner by Mayor William Hale Thompson three years ago.

Whether he will return to the post of deputy commissioner or to the captaincy of a district was not immediately announced.

Commissioner Russell's resignation was made public after he had held a half-hour conference today with Corporation Counsel Samuel A. Ettelson, one of Mayor Thompson's chief advisors, at Ettelson's home.

CHURCHES ACTIVE

During the week that the Lingle murder has remained unsolved, city officials, civic organizations, the churches and the newspapers have been demanding that the heads of the police department step aside.

Eleven murders in two weeks followed by the slaying of Lingle in broad daylight in one of the most crowded parts of the downtown district, brought about a wave of public indignation at the entire gang situation in Chicago. Action was demanded on every hand.

The affidavit charges that Trego with Don 'Skinny' Miller drove up to the Davidson house with the back end of the automobile driven by Miller carrying chickens, which it was learned later were stolen from Frank Hudson.

Both men were arraigned before Squire E. C. Fricke, Miller pleading guilty and paying a fine, and Trego denying his guilt. He was bound over to the grand jury, and again pleaded not guilty. He had been free under $500 bond.

RESULTS OF TARIFF BILL ARE AWAITED

Politicians Sit Back and Watch Reaction After Hoover's Announcement.

WASHINGTON, June 16—Business men and politicians sat back today and waited the first effects upon industry and commerce—and the pocketbook of the man-in-the-street of President Hoover's unprecedented Sunday announcement he would sign the so-called Hawley-Smoot-Grundy "billion dollar" tariff bill, despite its possible "inequalities and inequitable compromises."

Politicians now are waiting to see whether the country at large will approve his gesture, or whether, through bi-^{partisan} notes and otherwise, it will favor the thought he should have vetoed it on the ground it will result in high living costs all around.

With the November Congressional election campaigns nearing the boiling point, Republican regulars are preparing to carry to the voters the president's 2,000 word argument in defense of the tariff.

Democrats, openly jubilant at the permit it to become law, are just as ready to dispute the justice of those same arguments and demand that the electorate repudiate them.

PLANES USED IN HUNT FOR MISSING MEN

Prominent Toledo and Lucas-Co. Men Lost in Lake Erie—Boat Is Found.

TOLEDO, O., June 16—Airplanes, coastguard boats and at least a dozen private yachts joined in search of Lake Erie today to solve the disappearance of eight men, seven of them prominent in Lucas-co business and political circles, from a high-powered speedboat between Toledo and Put-in-bay Island.

BOAT IS FOUND

The speedboat, a former rum-running craft, was found floating two miles west of Sister Island yesterday by Walter Horley of Toledo. The craft was empty of occupants, its gas tank was dry, the motor in gear, and the throttle open.

The seven missing men are: Arthur Kruse of the Kruse-Burman Mortuary Co., undertakers of Toledo.

John Myers, wealthy Toledoan and owner of the craft.

Charles R. Nauts, United States Internal Revenue Collector of the Toledo district.

Herbert W. Nauts, his brother, Attorney and active in Lucas-co politics.

Franklin R. Jones, former member of the Lucas-co board of elections.

Frank Miller, former city water commissioner of Toledo.

Henry Hainbush, assistant county engineer of Toledo.

John Likzag, expert boatman and pilot of the craft.

The eight men set out Saturday for the annual Elk's outing at Pelee Island. They were last seen when they rounded the excursion steamer, Greyhound, at the Toledo Yacht Club, where 600 Elks boarded the boat for the picnic.

TWO THEORIES

Two theories were advanced as to the disappearance of the eight men: first, that they were traveling at full speed and became twisted in a wave, or struck a log that tossed them all out into the lake; second, that they may have stopped at an island for repairs and that their boat, left in gear and with the throttle open, swished out into the lake, leaving them marooned.

The speed of the craft—a 36 foot ex-rum-running boat was approximately 50 miles per hour, it was said. Boatmen declared that if the occupants of the craft were thrown into the lake, they would have been drowned.

The propeller of the derelict craft, examination proved, was bent and the windshield was broken. Only a small amount of gas-oil was found in the auxiliary tank of the boat. The regular tank was empty. A man's hat and three life preservers were found in the craft also.

A squadron of six airplanes was asked to assist in the search of the western section of Lake Erie today. All private yachts have been offered out to scour the lake. Coast guardmen combed the territory with the aid of powerful searchlights last night, but were unable to find any trace of the missing men.

Charles Hauts, one of the missing, has been the leader of Lucas-co Republicans since Postmaster General Walter F. Brown took office at Washington. He was appointed internal revenue collector for the district during the administration of the late Warren G. Harding. Previous to that he had been clerk of the Toledo city council.

Miss Erma Watts has resigned her position at Jeffries and Colville's Dry Goods Store to become an operator at the Citizen's Telephone Co.

The Marmon sedan owned by Max Friedman, E. Mill street, was stolen from in front of his home shortly after midnight Sunday according to a report made to police.

The car carries license plate numbers A-90,760 and is a dark blue color.

Friedman told police that about midnight he heard an automobile start near his house and went to the window but was unable to see anything. Thinking that the car was being started farther down the street he returned to his bed.

JAKE LINGLE'S DEATH FORCES FINAL ACTION

Churches, Civic Organizations and Officials Want Slayer of Reporter.

CHICAGO, June 16—Commissioner of Police William F. Russell and Deputy Commissioner of Detectives John Stege resigned today.

The resignations were the results of demands which were voiced throughout the city following a series of gang killings which culminated one week ago in the death of Alfred ("Jake") Lingle, veteran police reporter.

Deputy Commissioner John Alcock was appointed immediately as acting commissioner of Police. Chief of Detectives John Egan became acting deputy commissioner of detectives.

Russell did not sever his connection with the police department entirely, retaining his rank of captain. He was deputy commissioner when appointed commissioner by Mayor William Hale Thompson three years ago.

Whether he will return to the post of deputy commissioner or to the captaincy of a district was not immediately announced.

Commissioner Russell's resignation was made public after he had held a half-hour conference today with Corporation Counsel Samuel A. Ettelson, one of Mayor Thompson's chief advisors, at Ettelson's home.

CHURCHES ACTIVE

During the week that the Lingle murder has remained unsolved, city officials, civic organizations, the churches and the newspapers have been demanding that the heads of the police department step aside.

Eleven murders in two weeks, climaxed by the slaying of Lingle in broad daylight in one of the most crowded parts of the downtown district, brought about a wave of public indignation at the entire gang situation in Chicago. Action was demanded on every hand.

The church pulpits throughout the city yesterday, the gang situation was the principal topic of discussion.

The retiring commissioner announced that he would retain his rank of captain.

"I'll take the most inconsequential police station in the city, any place they want to put me," he said.

His last official order before turning over to Acting Commissioner Alcock was to sign an order transferring Captain Stege from the detective bureau to the Irving Park police station.

SCIOTO BRICK WORK RUSHED

A. W. Burns Co., To Finish Laying Bricks South of City By Wednesday.

The brick laying on the Scioto-trail, U. S. Route 23, south of this city is expected to be finished Wednesday, according to officials of the A. W. Burns Construction Co., who have the contract.

The brick work so far has been laid to the Dunn farm, which is near the corporation line. The bricks are being laid at the rate of 1,000 feet per day, and in this job instead of having a white streak painted in the center of the roadway, a line of white bricks is being laid to mark the center line.

When this project is completed travellers out of Columbus will enjoy about 45 miles of brick highway to the Pickaway-co line on U. S. Route 23.

CHEVROLET CAR IS RECOVERED

The Chevrolet sedan, owned by Perry Shaffer, E. Mound street, which was stolen while parked in Columbus last Wednesday was Saturday parked in a highway in the northern part of Pickaway-co. The car had been stripped of two tires, all tools, the battery and the rims for the headlights.

The car was parked in Columbus for only ten minutes last week when its driver went into a store to make a purchase. When he came out it was gone.

C. T. Gilmore was a business visitor in Columbus.

RECORD CROWD SEES INDIANS LOSE SECOND TO NEW YORK

Ruth and Gehrig Connect For Long Blows In Dropping Cleveland To Second Place—Chicago Cubs Fall Before Giants.

By COPELAND C. BURG

NEW YORK, June 16.—Baseball fans in Cleveland are smart folks. They wanted to see what a Cleveland team leading the American league this late in the season actually looked like and turned out Sunday 34,000 strong, a record crowd. Had they waited until today it would have been just too late for the nonce, for the great Mr. Ruth home and the hardly less mighty one, Mr. Gehrig, garnered two complete voyages, permitting the Yankees to win, 17 to 10.

As the resounding calvary dashed into the old fortress, the scalping Redmen were forced to retreat into second position in favor of the Athletics with only a good sized Indian blanket separating the sliding Washington Senators and the bounding Yanks.

Lefty Grove was so effective for the A's, the Detroit Tigers had to be content with four hits and lost, 10 to 1. Jimmy Fox homered. Forty-five thousand fans say Gabby Hartnett bag a circuit blast and three other clouts off Pete Donohue, but these were not enough to win for the Chicago Cubs and they fell before the Giants, 7 to 4. Donohue got three of the Giants' 12 single-bangles.

Babe Herman prolonged his batting slump and Brooklyn lost to St. Louis 9 to 4. In addition to Herman's default, the Flock afforded Dazzy Vance ragged support and misplays gave the Cardinals five runs in the second canto. While Cantwell was offering air tight ball for the Boston Braves, Cincinnati aided his cause with four errors and the Reds slipped out to lose, 4 to 3.

Heinie Manush, traded last week to Washington by St. Louis, hit a homer, but Al Crowder, also a former Brownie, weakened in the ninth and Heinie's efforts were largely wasted with St. Louis winning, 3 to 2.

OBETZ EDGES ASHVILLE 9

Strong Defensive Shown By Suburban League Leaders To Hold County Boys.

The Suburban league-leading Obetz Junction team proved too strong for the Ashville entrant in the league at Ashville Sunday. Obetz won by a 4 to 2 score. According to spectators of the contest Ashville should have won the game 1 to 0, but errors on the part of the Ashville starting pitcher proved the downfall of the Pickaway-co aggregation. One of the largest crowds to ever see a ball game in Ashville was present and although the home team was defeated everyone who saw the contest was satisfied.

COLUMBUS, O., June 16.—The Columbus Senators were back in the heat of the American Association pennant race today with undisputed possession of second place. The Solons took both ends of a double-header with St. Paul yesterday, 9 to 8 and 6 to 5, to dislodge the Apostles from the second rung.

The other six teams of the league played two games each yesterday. Toledo trounced Minneapolis, 15 to 11, in the first tilt and the Millers came back in the second and captured a six-inning contest, 6 to 3.

Indianapolis won its first game with Kansas City, 9 to 3, and the second resulted in a 5 to 5 tie. The tie game was ended in the seventh inning because of the six o'clock Sunday law.

Louisville gained a stronger hold on first place and boosted its average to 673 percent by taking both its games with Milwaukee. The first game ended 5 to 5. The second was a pitcher's duel between Weinert and Steily. Weinert won, giving the Colonels a 2 to 1 victory.

No games are scheduled in the association for today and the scenes of tomorrow's battles will shift to the western cities.

FREE-FOR-ALL ARGUMENT IS SEEN AS SOCK MOGULS MEET

Battle Over Recognition of Max Schmeling As Heavyweight Champion of the World Expected to Raise Roof Off Building.

By HYPE IGEE

NEW YORK, June 16 — There may be a fine wordy, free-for-all at the Boxing Commission tomorrow when Max Schmeling's name comes up as the new "champion" and Jack Sharkey's as the "goat."

The commission is sure to be at loggerheads over Schmeling's claim. Muldoon doesn't think he is entitled to the crown. Jim Farley assured me after the fight that the title went with the foul, that it was unfortunate, but that Max must be recognized. His name should join those of the immortals on the Muldoon-Tunney trophy.

Muldoon says that he won't permit it to be embossed on the plaque, along with Sullivan, Corbett, Fitzsimmons and Jeffries. Herbert Bayard Swope, a member of the trophy committee won't vote to have Schmeling's name inscribed under the strange circumstances of his winning. Both Swope and Muldoon do not believe Max has proved his right to be rated among the ring great.

Jack may receive a six months plaster for transgressing in that unhappy moment that cost him, perhaps, the world's heavyweight title.

It may be that when both men and the boxing commissioners agreed to set aside the foul money penalty, suspension went with it. We'll know all about it tomorrow.

Too bad that when the commissioners agreed to set aside the penalty—that is the rule that a man is to be paid pro rata if he commits a foul in the early rounds—didn't think to bar a claim of foul entirely and substitute a "time out" clause instead.

It seems to me that the foul-claiming boys have wished such a ruling on themselves. You can bet all the lollypops at Coney Island that it will be "time out" next time and no claim of "foul" allowed.

I think that Max would have agreed to a "time out" proposition, for he stated only a few days ago that a "brave man never resorts to a claim of a foul." I don't think so either. You never heard Jack Dempsey squawking about fouls.

Max wasn't allowed the privilege of being "brave" and continuing.

If the commission, in view of what has gone before in these big bouts, had stipulated that the title couldn't be won on a foul, you would have found Herr Schmeling back there, fighting, after a 10 or 15 minute rest.

The Colas have a chance to go into undisputed possession of second place by breaking its tie with Doggy Ward's aggregation.

Wherever you go Spit is a horrid word, but it is worse on the end of your cigar

...the war against Spitting is a crusade of decency...join it. Smoke CERTIFIED CREMO!

"It serves him right," we say when the filthy spitter is caught in the act. For spitting is an outrage against public decency. And yet, thousands continue to smoke cigars rolled by dirty, yellowed fingers that tip the ends in spit! For more than half of all cigars made in this country are still made by hand, and therefore subject to the risk of spit!

Certified Cremo protects you against this abomination! Every tobacco leaf entering the clean, sunny Certified Cremo factories is scientifically treated by methods recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture. And its purity is safeguarded along every step of the way by amazing inventions that foil, wrap and tip the cigars without the possibility of spit! Try a Certified Cremo—see how wonderfully good it is! Made of the choicest, tenderest leaves that the crop affords, we claim Certified Cremo's quality is tastier than that of any other cigar. Don't let its price stand in your way. Your physician has in mind a cigar like Certified Cremo when he recommends a mild smoke in place of heavy brands. Crush-proof...immaculate...foil-wrapped... Certified Cremo is the kind of cigar the late Vice-President Marshall undoubtedly was thinking of when he said: "What this country needs is a good 5c cigar!"

FREE-FOR-ALL ARGUMENT IS SEEN AS SOCK MOGULS MEET

Battle Over Recognition of Max Schmeling As Heavyweight Champion of the World Expected to Raise Roof Off Building.

By HYPE IGOE
NEW YORK, June 16 — There may be a fine wordy, free-for-all at the Boxing Commission tomorrow when Max Schmeling's name comes up as the new "champion" and Jack Sharkey's as the "goat."
The commission is sure to be at loggerheads over Schmeling's claim. Muldoon doesn't think he is entitled to the crown. Jim Farley assured me after the fight that the title went with the foul, that it was unfortunate, but that Max must be recognized. His name should join those of the immortals on the Muldoon-Tunney trophy.
Muldoon says that he won't permit it to be embossed on the plaque, along with Sullivan, Corbett, Fitzsimmons and Jeffries.
Herbert Bayard Swope, a member of the trophy committee won't vote to have Schmeling's name inscribed under the strange circumstances of his winning. Both Swope and Muldoon do not believe Max has proved his right to be rated among the ring great.
Jack may receive a six months plaster for transgressing in that unhappy moment that cost him, perhaps, the world's heavyweight title.
It may be that when both men and the boxing commissioners agreed to set aside the foul money penalty, suspension went with it. We'll know all about it tomorrow.
Too bad that when the commissioners agreed to set aside the penalty—that is the rule that a man is to be paid pro rata if he commits a foul in the early rounds—didn't think to bar a claim of foul entirely and substitute a "time out" clause instead.
It seems to me that the foul-claiming boys have wished such a ruling on themselves. You can bet all the lollypops at Coney Island that it will be "time out" next time and no claim of "foul" allowed.

I think that Max would have agreed to a "time out" proposition, for he stated only a few days ago that a "brave man never resorts to a claim of a foul." I don't think so either. You never heard Jack Dempsey squawking about fouls.
Max wasn't allowed the privilege of being "brave" and continuing.
If the commission, in view of what has gone before in these big bouts, had stipulated that the title couldn't be won on a foul, you would have found Herr Schmeling back there, fighting, after a 10 or 15 minute rest.

FAMILY DOCTOR LEARNED THIS ABOUT CONSTIPATION

Dr. Caldwell loved people. His years of practice convinced him many were ruining their health by careless selection of laxatives. He determined to write a harmless prescription which would get at the cause of constipation, and correct it.

Today, the prescription he wrote in 1885 is the world's most popular laxative! He prescribed a mixture of herbs and other pure ingredients now known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, in thousands of cases where bad breath, coated tongue, gas, headaches, biliousness and lack of appetite or energy showed the bowels of men, women and children were sluggish. It proved successful in even the most obstinate cases; old folks liked it for it never gripped; children liked its pleasant taste. All drugstores today have Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin in bottles.

SENATE WARNS THAT POSSIBLE DEFICIT CLOSE

Administration Budget Bureau Says Treasury Will Face Shortage This Year.

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
WASHINGTON, June 16—The administration's budget bureau has warned congressional leaders that the treasury may face a deficit next year unless appropriations are slashed to the bone, it was learned today.

As a result of the warning, new pressure will be exerted by administration leaders to prevent passage of a flood of appropriations and authorized proposals in the closing days of the present session.

Representative Cramton (R) of Michigan, informed by Director of the Budget Reop that the treasury is moving perilously near the danger line, announced he would fight all bills for unnecessary appropriations.

Representative Tilson of Connecticut, Republican leader of the House, also announced that every effort would be made to hold down appropriations, and Representative

Wood (R) of Indiana, Chairman of the Appropriations Committee, is taking a similar stand.

"I conferred with the director of the budget regarding a park bill of mine for which $2,000,000 was asked," said Cramton. "I was informed we are moving near the danger line and that amount was cut to a million."

"The budget, of course, is calculating expenditures against revenues in the next fiscal year, beginning July 1. It may be we will end up with a $50,000,000 surplus, and then people will say we have cried 'Wolf.'"

"But the estimates of future expenditures and revenues justifies the utmost economy. 'Otherwise we may face the necessity of increased taxation.'"

Majority leader Tilson said Congress has thus far kept under the budget estimates. Passage of the Rankin World War Veterans Compensation Bill, estimated to cost $75,000,000 by the Senate Finance Committee, is sure to bring a deficit, he said.

The administration, it is understood, was prepared to expend $20,000,000 to $30,000,000 to liberalize the World War Veterans' Compensation Law, but is strenuously opposing the Rankin bill.

Representative Rankin (D) of Mississippi, author of the measure, who overrode Republican leaders in the House to pass the bill in that body, declared Congress would pass the bill over the President's veto, if necessary.

Thus far Congress has paid little heed to economy warnings. In addition to the pressure of a campaign year, there have been demands for liberal federal appropriations to create employment and stimulate trade. While actual appropriations have been kept down, authorizations for future expenditures have increased.

TREND OF FOREIGN STOCK CHANGES TO MARGIN PLAY

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH

WASHINGTON — Foreigners who formerly were heavy purchasers of American bonds and certain stocks have radically departed from this policy and during the last two years have traded on margin in speculative stocks to the amount of $3,257,000,000, according to an analysis by Iver C. Olsen, of the commerce department.

American traders repurchased $2,265,000,000 of the stock bought for foreign accounts leaving a total of $992,000,000 still in the apparent possession of persons abroad, Olsen said today.

"Many foreigners leave their holdings of American securities in vaults in the United States and it is impossible for the broker to determine whether the stocks are still in their possession or sold," Olsen explained.

"France and certain other countries impose heavy property and stamp taxes on foreign securities—explaining, perhaps, why many foreigners desire to leave their American stocks in the United States."

Attempts have been made to ascertain the volume of American securities moving abroad for foreign accounts, but the complications and obstacles render even a round estimate difficult according to Olsen. Foreigners were said to be continually in and out of the market and in the course of a fortnight may have speculated in radio, motors and industries without involving the transfer of a single share abroad.

Olsen added: "one concern in New York stated it sold $10,000,000 of American stock to foreign customers last year, of which only $2,000,000 was actually transferred. "The remainder was purchased on margin and disposed of before the end of the year. Two of the largest houses in New York annually trade in $100,000,000 to $200,000,000 worth of American stocks for foreign accounts, of which only about $2,000,000 worth is purchased outright, and transferred abroad for actual possession."

In 1928 American stocks and bonds sold to foreigners totaled $1,661,000,000 in value while $1,135,000,000 were bought back by Americans in 1929 $1,596,000,000 worth of American securities were bought by foreigners and $1,130,000,000 repurchased, leaving a balance of $466,000,000.

Olsen attributed the large foreign trading in speculative securities to the fact that the world has noted the growing wealth of the United States resulting from its ever-increasing industrial activity.

ILL 10 YEARS; KONJOLA SOON CAME TO RESCUE

New Medicine Quickly Ends Stomach Trouble of Most Stubbarn Kind—Earns Sincere Praise.

MRS. M. F. HENLY.

"I suffered for ten years with stomach trouble before I found Konjola," said Mrs. M. F. Henly, 515 Concord street, Dayton. "Everything I ate caused me much pain and suffering. Gas formed and I felt as though there were a rock in my stomach. Heart palpitations made sleep difficult and I was rapidly losing weight and strength. I tried many medicines and treatments but nothing helped me."

"I read in the papers of the wonderful results others were getting from Konjola and decided to give this medicine a trial. What a surprise this medicine gave me! The first bottle helped me so much that I knew I was on the right road at last. Day by day my health condition improved until, at the end of four weeks, my health problems were solved. I have gained ten pounds in weight and after my experience there is no medicine to compare with Konjola."

Konjola is not designed to afford mere temporary relief. It quickly goes to the source of ailments of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels and rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness.

Konjola is sold in Circleville at Hamilton & Ryan's drug store and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—Adv.

The large foreign trading has been a factor in upward movements of the stock market.

LEGION MEET IS IN AUGUST

Legionnaires Will Witness Official Ducking of Cincinnati Post Leader.

Local Legionnaires from Howard Hall post of the American Legion who plan to visit Cincinnati during the state convention August 17, 18 and 19 will have a chance to witness the official ducking of the Commander of Ohio's largest post when Wm. B. Handley, "head man" of Robert E. Bentley Post, Cincinnati, "gets his" in the famous old historic Tyler-Davidson fountain on Fountain Square at the hands of "Hen" Estes, City Solicitor of Middletown, Ohio and Commander of the Legion post in that city.

The ducking is in payment of a bet made by Handley last winter in Columbus when National Commander O. L. Bodenhamer was the guest of honor at the annual Commanders and Adjutants banquet.

Much rivalry exists between the Middletown and Cincinnati posts. Following the reading of the report of the State Membership Committee, Past Department Commander George E. Denny, challenges flew thick and fast between post commanders.

Commander Handley of Bentley challenged Commander Estes to a contest in which Bentley agree to produce twice as many members as Middletown. Bentley raised the dues to $5 this year and it took a lot of work to maintain its standing of last year as "Ohio's largest." As a result Middletown won.

Handley can't swim. He was married on New Years. He asked Estes to let him take his ducking in "the fountain." Estes agreed and now the whole Legion of Ohio is planning on crowding about the fountain to see "Bill" baptized.

"I'll take my chances on nine inches of water but not on nine feet!" Handley is reported as saying. The greatest crowd in the history of Ohio Legion conventions is expected to visit Cincinnati in August. Headquarters are located at 322 Broadway.

READING FOR FLYING
Booksellers say that after every notable feat in the sky there is a heavy demand for books on aeronautics. Flying holds the imagination of many readers. They want serious works on aviation as well as stories of adventure and romance in the air. It doesn't matter whether they intend to fly either as pilots or passengers; mere onlookers at airports like to read about flying.
It might be of more practical advantage to commercial aviation if more people would make use of established air lines, as Will Rogers does, instead of exercising their air-mindedness in looking on and reading books on aviation.

SULPHURIC ACID SHOWERS
A chemist in his laboratory doesn't pour sulphuric acid on his clothes. But cities that permit uncontrolled smoke to pour forth from factory and railroad and apartment house chimneys give themselves a continual shower of this corrosive. According to a statement of the federal Bureau of Standards, there is an annual precipitation of sulphuric acid, falling like rain, of 11 to 190 tons per square mile in cities suffering from the smoke nuisance.
This rain has a destructive effect on building stone, metals and vegetation. It can't be other than harmful to clothing. What it must do to the membranes of human noses, throats, and lungs is appalling. Just because it doesn't descend in one sudden downpour, but comes in small doses instead, citizens assume too readily that it isn't harmful and that, anyway, there's nothing to be done about it. Perhaps if they talked less about "smoke abatement" and more about sulphuric acid showers, public authorities would move faster in eliminating this grave nuisance.

PAYING DEBTS
A business reporter quotes a friend as saying that his company, a large corporation, owed him $2,000, and asked him to wait for payment. Naturally he couldn't refuse. But he was much disgusted on reading, shortly afterward, a statement issued by the company boasting of its assets and financial position.
The company, he decided, could have paid him. And then he could have paid others whom he kept waiting for their money.
It doesn't seem likely that many corporations are doing this sort of thing. But the practice is certainly more general than it ought to be in all kinds of business and personal dealings.
When a debtor can pay, and doesn't, he keeps his creditor from paying. And the latter in turn keeps his creditor from paying. And so on in an endless, vicious circle.
Most of us are in debt. Very few of us are insolvent; we can't pay others simply because others don't pay us. One debt paid, if passed on, might pay a dozen debts in a day, and come back to the original payer. Then all those people would be out of debt, and feel better, and there would be a better business spirit in the locality.
If there were only a clearing house for debts in general

EXPLORERS
The other day William Beebe, who is as familiar with certain submarine areas as the rest of us are with our own lawns, established a deep-sea diving record. He used a steel ball and went 500 feet beneath the surface of the sea, 475 feet deeper than man had ever gone before.
A flyer has gone more than 50,000 feet above sea level, 43,000 feet being the new official record established recently by Lieutenant Soucek.
Men like Rear Admiral Byrd in polar regions and Byrd in South American jungles advance human knowledge of old earth's unexplored surface. Men like Roy Chapman Andrews study earth's records for knowledge of prehistoric man. Others go even farther down into the depths of the ocean and ever farther up into earth's thin outer atmosphere.
Man may be an insignificant part of the vast universe, but he has boundless courage and initiative. His nerve, curiosity and thirst for knowledge send him exploring and experimenting into every region, known and unknown, pleasant or dangerous or seemingly impossible of access. There is not much reason for anyone with a spark of imagination to be bored in this world.

If those Roumanians had good sense they'd make Carol's wife king.

"WHERE'S EMILY?"
by CAROLYN WELLS

WHAT HAS HAPPENED BEFORE.
PREPARATIONS are being made for the marriage of lovely Emily Duane to Rodney Sayre, upstanding, young New Englander, at her home, "Knollwood," in exclusive Hillside Park. Among the guests are Pauline Pennington, Emily's best friend and her husband, Jim Pennington, the author. Lal Singh, Hindu fakir, is thrilled with the fair sex of the park, is also present. Emily is popular with the diamond necklace presented to her by Ed. Pauline, jealous of Emily's triumphs, seeks to belittle Emily's elaborate plans. When Burton Lamb, Rod's chum, discusses Emily's bequest in her will to Lal Singh, she informs him it will be void the day she marries.

CHAPTER V.

EVERETT Craven had long been a suitor of Emily's. Though several years older, he was a man of persistence and determination, and her repeated rejections seemed only to intensify his resolve to win her. Of course, since her engagement to Sayre had been announced, Craven had given up hope, and though still attending to her legal affairs, he was a changed man.
A good lawyer, though of no brilliance, a good citizen, in a non-committal way, Craven had few friends and no enemies. He was uninteresting and rather self-centered.
As a matter of fact, Emily had thought little about him. She rejected his proposals as fast as he made them, and then, as he showed no special resentment, she continued to retain his legal services.
Craven continued because she was his best-paying client and he had none too many.
So now, taking the opportunity, Emily spoke to him, in Sayre's presence, about her will, and about the advisability of making a new one to be signed after she was married, and before starting on her wedding trip.
"But there isn't time now to discuss this thing at length," she said, glancing at her watch. "Will you come tomorrow morning, at ten, and we can go into it? You see, we're having the rehearsal soon, and I have to get rid of these people."
She danced away, and Rodney's watching eyes saw her go into the telephone booth. This was just outside one of the doors leading into the lounge, and Emily found her maid, Pearl, hovering in the hall.
Pearl was a negress, as black as jet, and devoted, soul and body, to her Miss Emily.
Not much older than her mistress, Pearl did everything for her, and was so capable as a personal maid, a nurse, and to a degree, a social secretary, that Emily was tempted to take the maid with her on her wedding trip. But the desire to be alone with Rodney for their honeymoon was too strong, and Emily had decided to leave Pearl at home, and send for her if she needed her so greatly.
She smiled at the grinning negress as she entered the booth. There was great understanding between the two, and Black Pearl, as she was of course called, stood sentinel at the door of the booth. As Emily became excited and her voice rose in exclamation, Pearl, too, rolled her eyes in delight and clapped her hands softly. For the had overheard Emily's part of this conversation:
"Is this the hospital?"
"Yes, madam."
"May I speak to Nurse Graham?"
"I'll see. Wait a moment."
"This you, Nurse Graham?"
"Yes, Miss Duane."
"Has Mrs. Laurence's baby arrived?"
"Yes, Miss Duane."
"Oh, lovely! What is it?"
"A little girl."
"Fine! How is Mrs. Laurence?"
"Doing beautifully. I must go now."
"Wait a minute, Nurse. Listen. If I come over, right away, now, can I see her?"
"Oh, no, no! The baby, the little girl—"

"Yes, you may," returned Sayre, who liked the old chap, though he knew him but slightly.
"You see, I've known the Duane, root and branch, all my life, and there's no finer stock anywhere."
"I can believe that," and Rod smiled at him.
"But there's one thing—"
"Ah, I thought there was a catch somewhere!"
Abel Collins grinned.
"Yes, and it's this. There's a streak of stubbornness in the whole family. It's always there. 'Dor-mant, maybe, or prominent. But there, I'm giving you this tip for what it's worth."
"It's worth a lot," Mr. Collins said. "Don't think I undervalue it. But I admit it would be worse for me if I didn't already know it. Do you think I could know Emily as I do, and not be aware of her—well, we'll call it firmness of character."
"Call it all the pretty names you like," the stubbornness, obstinacy and pig-headedness, that's what it is."
"There aren't three men in Boston I'd allow to talk like that. But I know your affection for my girl, so you may say what you choose. And after all, even pig-headedness isn't a crime."
"No, sir; it isn't. At least, not in Emily. In her father, it came right near being. Oh, well, it's her only flaw, and knowing it, she can make allowances."
"Where's Emily?" demanded Betty, coming to Sayre a few moments later.
"Why, she was here a minute or two ago," returned Rodney, mindful of his instructions.
"Well, where is she now?" and Betty grew impatient.
"No, I can't find her anywhere. And you know I don't want any body to know it, or the girls would all rush over. Now, I'm going to run over to the hospital, just a minute, to kiss it."
"Kiss the hospital?"
"No, silly, to kiss the baby. It's a girl—a darling, sweet little girl, sure-fire good luck as no such keep still! I don't want anybody to know it, or the girls would all rush over. Now, I'm going to run over to the hospital, just a minute, to kiss it."

READING FOR FLYING
Booksellers say that after every notable feat in the sky there is a heavy demand for books on aeronautics. Flying holds the imagination of many readers. They want serious works on aviation as well as stories of adventure and romance in the air. It doesn't matter whether they intend to fly either as pilots or passengers; mere onlookers at airports like to read about flying.
It might be of more practical advantage to commercial aviation if more people would make use of established air lines, as Will Rogers does, instead of exercising their air-mindedness in looking on and reading books on aviation.

SULPHURIC ACID SHOWERS
A chemist in his laboratory doesn't pour sulphuric acid on his clothes. But cities that permit uncontrolled smoke to pour forth from factory and railroad and apartment house chimneys give themselves a continual shower of this corrosive. According to a statement of the federal Bureau of Standards, there is an annual precipitation of sulphuric acid, falling like rain, of 11 to 190 tons per square mile in cities suffering from the smoke nuisance.
This rain has a destructive effect on building stone, metals and vegetation. It can't be other than harmful to clothing. What it must do to the membranes of human noses, throats, and lungs is appalling. Just because it doesn't descend in one sudden downpour, but comes in small doses instead, citizens assume too readily that it isn't harmful and that, anyway, there's nothing to be done about it. Perhaps if they talked less about "smoke abatement" and more about sulphuric acid showers, public authorities would move faster in eliminating this grave nuisance.

PAYING DEBTS
A business reporter quotes a friend as saying that his company, a large corporation, owed him $2,000 and asked him to wait for payment. Naturally he couldn't refuse. But he was much disgusted on reading, shortly afterward, a statement issued by the company boasting of its assets and financial position.
The company, he decided, could have paid him. And then he could have paid others whom he kept waiting for their money.
It doesn't seem likely that many corporations are doing this sort of thing. But the practice is certainly more general than it ought to be in all kinds of business and personal dealings.
When a debtor can pay, and doesn't, he keeps his creditor from paying. And the latter in turn keeps his creditor from paying. And so on in an endless, vicious circle.
Most of us are in debt. Very few of us are insolvent; we can't pay others simply because others don't pay us. One debt paid, if passed on, might pay a dozen debts in a day, and come back to the original payer. Then all those people would be out of debt, and feel better, and there would be a better business spirit in the locality.

EXPLORERS
The other day William Beebe, who is as familiar with certain submarine areas as the rest of us are with our own lands, established a deep-sea diving record. He used a steel ball and went 800 feet beneath the surface of the sea, 475 feet deeper than man had ever gone before.
A flyer has gone more than 50 times as far above sea level, 43,000 feet being the new official record established recently by Lieutenant Soucek.
Men like Rear Admiral Byrd in polar regions and Dwyer in South American jungles advance human knowledge of old earth's unexplored surface. Men like Roy Chapman Andrews study earth's records for knowledge of prehistoric man. Others go even farther down into the depths of the ocean and ever farther up into earth's thin outer atmosphere.
Man may be an insignificant part of the vast universe, but he has boundless courage and initiative. His nerve, curiosity and thirst for knowledge send him exploring and experimenting into every region, known and unknown, pleasant or dangerous or seemingly impossible of access. There isn't much reason for anyone with a spark of imagination to be bored in this world.

"WHERE'S EMILY?"

by CAROLYN WELLS

WHAT HAS HAPPENED BEFORE.
PREPARATIONS are being made for the marriage of lovely Emily Duane to Rodney Sayre, upstanding, young New Englander, at her home, "Knollwood," in exclusive Hillside Park. Among the guests are Pauline Pennington, Emily's best friend and her husband, Jim Pennington, the author. Lal Singh, Hindu fakir, popular with the fair sex of the park, is also present. Emily is thrilled with the diamond necklace presented to her by Rod. Pauline, jealous of Emily's triumphs, seeks to belittle Emily's elaborate plans. When Burton Lamb, Rod's chum, discusses Emily's bequest in her will to Lal Singh, he informs him it will be void the day she marries.

CHAPTER V.
EVERETT Craven had long been a suitor of Emily's. Though several years older, he was a man of persistency and determination, and her repeated rejections seemed only to intensify his resolve to win her.
Of course, since her engagement to Sayre had been announced, Craven had given up hope, and though still attending to her legal affairs, he was a changed man.
A good lawyer, though of no brilliance, a good citizen, in a non-committal way, Craven had few friends and no enemies. He was uninteresting and rather self-centered.
As a matter of fact, Emily had thought little about him. She rejected his proposals as fast as he made them, and then, as he showed no special resentment, she continued to retain his legal services.
Craven continued because she was his best-paying client and he had none too many.
So now, taking the opportunity, Emily spoke to him, in Sayre's presence, about her will, and about the advisability of making a new one to be signed after she was married, and before starting on her wedding trip.
"But there isn't time now to discuss this thing at length," she said, glancing at her watch. "Will you come tomorrow morning, at ten, and we can go into it? You see, we're having the rehearsal soon now, and I have to get rid of these people."
She danced away and Rodney's watching eyes saw her go into the telephone booth. This was just outside one of the doors leading into the lounge, and Emily found her maid, Pearl, hovering in the hall.
Pearl was a negress, as black as jet, and devoted, soul and body, to her Miss Emily.
Not much older than her mistress, Pearl did everything for her, and was so capable as a personal maid, a needlewoman, and to a degree, a social secretary, that Emily was tempted to take the maid with her on her wedding trip. But the desire to be alone with Rodney for their honeymoon was too strong, and Emily had decided to leave Pearl at home, and send for her if she needed her so greatly.
She smiled at the grinning negress as she entered the booth. There was great understanding between the two, and Black Pearl, as she was of course called, stood sentinel at the door of the booth. As Emily became excited and her voice rose in exclamation, Pearl, too, rolled her eyes in delight and clapped her hands softly. For she had overheard Emily's part of this conversation:
"Is this the hospital?"
"Yes, madam."
"May I speak to Nurse Graham?"
"I'll see. Wait a moment."
"This you, Nurse Graham?"
"Yes, Miss Duane."
"Has Mrs. Laurence's baby arrived?"
"Yes, Miss Duane."
"Oh, lovely! What is it?"
"A little girl."
"Fine! How is Mrs. Laurence?"
"Doing beautifully. I must go now."
"Wait a minute, Nurse. Listen. If I come over, right away, now, can I see her?"
"Mrs. Laurence?"
"Oh, no, no! The baby, the little girl—"

"Yes, you may," returned Sayre, who liked the old chap, though he knew him but slightly.
"You see, I've known the Duanes, rod and branch, all my life, and there's no finer stock anywhere."
"I can believe that," and Rod smiled at him.
"But there's one thing—"
"Ah, I thought there was a catch somewhere!"
Abel Collins grinned.
"Yes, and it's this. There's a streak of stubbornness in the whole family. It's always there. Dominant, maybe, or prominent. But there, I'm giving you this tip for what it's worth."
"It's worth a lot, Mr. Collins. Don't think I undervalue it. But I admit it would be worth more if I didn't already know it. Do you think I could know Emily as I do, and not be aware of her—well, we'll call it firmness of character?"
"Call it all the pretty names you like, it's her stubbornness, obstinacy and pig-headedness, that's what it is."
"There aren't three men in Boston I'd allow to talk like that. But I know your affection for my girl, so you may say what you choose. And after all, even pig-headedness isn't a crime."
"No, sir; it isn't. At least, not in Emily. In her father, it came mightily near being. Oh, well, it's her only flaw, and knowing it, you can make allowances."
"Yes," said Rodney Sayre. "I can make allowances."
"Where's Emily?"
"Betty, coming to Sayre a few moments later."
"Why, she was here a minute or two ago," returned Rodney, mindful of his instructions.
"Well, where is she now?" and Betty grew impatient.
"Isn't she in the present room?"
"No, I can't find her anywhere. And everything has gone home, except the wedding party, and the Rehearsal will be here pretty quick. Oh, it's awful to be maid of honor to a bride like Emily! Do help me, Rod. Don't sit there grinning like a Chinese god of happiness! Get up, and find Emily!"
"Not so. You get Black Pearl; she'll smoke Emily out. Or ask Aunt Judy. I can't run around looking for the bride."
Betty went off, and then half a dozen young people from nearby houses came trooping in. They were the rest of the bridesmaids and ushers and with the house party made up the wedding procession that was to be rehearsed.
The minister arrived and for a moment cast a damper on the gaiety going on.
But the irrepressible spirits of the younger generation soon rose above such an influence, and gay laughter from the men and shrieks of laughter from the girls made the house ring with merriment.
Aunt Judy sat, looking on placidly. It seemed to her a strange performance, this rehearsal business, but it was Emily's wish, and that was that.
"Where's Emily?" was asked again and again, but as no one knew except Sayre, and he didn't talk, the question remained unanswered.
Then Spinks, the Rehearsal, came.
Emily being still absent, Betty took charge of affairs.
"Hello, Mr. Spinks," she greeted him. "Gracious, what's all this you've brought?"
For the Rehearsal had his arms full of gauzy white draperies, artificial flowers and other paraphernalia, while an assistant, following bare tall wooden standards, painted white.
"Can't get along without these traps, miss. Where'll I put 'em? Where's Miss Duane?"
"She'll be here in a minute. Somebody will help you take your stuff to the drawing-room; we'll rehearse in there."

Ambrosia is the term used in mythology to describe the substance which, with nectar, formed the food and drink of the gods, and which made immortal those who partook of it. Usually, both in Homer and later writers, ambrosia is the food and nectar the drink, but some, as Sappho, used ambrosia as the name of the drink and nectar as the food.

Flowers and Weddings
Flowers have been associated with weddings for thousands of years. Orange blossom has always been the most used wedding flower, and is supposed to portend luck and happiness.

DR. COPELAND SAYS—

A School That Teaches Right Living Principles

—Mr. Ford's Unique Experiment.

By DR. COPELAND

In the Old Wayside Inn, Made Famous by the Poet. Longfellow, A Class of Boys Are Being Taught Hygiene, Proper Diet and Self-Preservation.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

ONLY the other day I was reading of a really fine school for boys, sponsored by Mr. Henry Ford, in the old town of Sudbury, Mass. It is attracting quite a good deal of attention.

Here, in the old Wayside Inn, made famous by the poet, Longfellow, in his "Tales of a Wayside Inn," are five thirty-one very alive boys, all from twelve to seventeen years of age. And here they go to school.

This is a place where theory and practice go hand in hand. The boys go to school, not so much for the book learning, though they have plenty of that. They are to learn the fundamental lessons of right living, or to be more exact, "lessons in self-preservation."

Here a boy learns how to keep himself alive and well. He learns how to eat and why he eats it. He learns how to take care of himself economically, and to take care of his clothes and his home.

In short, he learns how to be an independent person. He also learns the practical means of maintaining a living in health and comfort.

The boys learn dairying, fruit farming, sheep and chicken raising, and corn meal, for they have a grist mill right on the place. They do the cooking and serving of meals. They look after all the cleaning, scrubbing, bed-making and other homely arts. They build radios, motors and furniture.

Work is good for everyone. But life is not all work for them for they have their fun and social good times. They dance in cotillions in the ballroom in the Inn, a century and a half old.

But there is another very important factor in their daily program. They learn how to keep well. Of course, there are the daily setting-up exercises every morning before breakfast, as well as a hygiene lecture. And the boys are on a strict diet.

The boys distinctly understand that this diet is forming eating habits that make for good health. Illness is seldom heard of in the school. This is the result of intelligent co-operation on the part of the boys in eating only the proper foods.

After many experiments a diet was found that seemed ideal in maintaining good health. The basic idea of the diet used in the school, is that but one type of food should be eaten at a given meal. Starches and proteins are not mixed, and therefore the old formula of meat and potatoes is considered chemically wrong.

At breakfast, the boys eat only milk and fruit. The average menu for breakfast consists of orange juice, baked apples and cream, with milk to drink.

Lunch is the starch meal. Raw vegetable salad, two or three hot vegetables, bread made from whole wheat flour, ground in their own grist mill, butter, with milk, makes up the luncheon at noon. This quite suffices until the evening meal.

The protein meal, dinner, is served without potatoes or bread. It has a salad, meat and green vegetables, and occasionally soup. No desserts of any kind are allowed, candy never and the boys do not smoke.

Every boy needs a practical education. Without it he is handicapped in many ways in seeking a future career. Here are a lot of vigorous healthy boys who are in line for promotion to higher vocational goals, and with a foundation built of good health.

Every important player in the Paramount company is in the picture, and everyone of them does something big, grand, delightful entertaining. There is none of the business of dragging in names just to swell the cast. Each member of this cast entertains.

A spirit of the most charming intimacy pervades the picture. The performers meet the audience more than half way and lead it into the joyful frolic of fun and gaiety. It's like nothing so much as a great, big, jovial Hollywood party with the greatest entertainers in the world on hand to provide the amusement and act as ever-thoughtful hosts.

There isn't space here to mention the numbers in detail. It must be the numbers in detail. Buddy Rogers, for instance, and Lillian Roth, and George Bancroft, and Clara Bow and Nancy Carroll, they're all in it. The song hits are marvelous. The dancing is superb, and there's not too much of it.

It's a grand show all-round. A peach of an entertainment. Like a hundred super-specials rolled into one—and then some!

AT THE GRAND
That imitable star of "Rio Rita," Bebe Daniels, whose silver voice will long be remembered, appears at the Grand theatre Monday and Tuesday in another picture which has been pronounced a marked success. The title of the picture is "Love Comes Along" and Lloyd Hughes, Ned Sparks and Montagu Love play important roles in the production.

Left-Handed
Left-handed children should never be forced to become right-handed. The brain, which controls muscular movements, would be affected, with possible serious results. Tactful training in the use of both hands is all you should do.

RESTFUL RETREATS
PARIS—Nature is going to combat nerves in the next generation by furnishing little zones of restful, quiet retreats around each center of activity to which every worker will retire for his private life. They will not be like the suburbs of today—half-country, half city, but veritable forest nooks, with trees, meadows and fine swimming pools.

Unless something of this kind is provided, says a well-known French doctor, the nerves of the coming generation will be shattered at birth. In nerves, as in physique, our descendant will begin where we leave off. Trained as we are to put up with more and more noise, we are living upon our nerves and it is the one who follow us who will suffer, the doctor continues.

Workers of the future will be like so many soldiers going into battle daily, considering the city as a great workshop and to live their private lives outside of them and in closer touch with Nature.

Pump Is Old Invention
The pump dates back to the remotest period. The shadow of Egypt is recorded as in use in 1500 B. C. Vitruvius, the Roman engineer, described the number of pump machines. The first centrifugal pump was devised by a Frenchman, M. le Demour, in 1732. The impulse pump was originally designed by Whitehurst, a watchmaker of Derby, England, in 1772, and perfected by Montgolfier, the famous balloonist, in 1790.

CUPID INSPIRED BY HOT WEATHER
PITTSBURGH.—Dan Cupid shivered and sulked in enforced hibernation due to a delayed spring but the warm weather has brought the busy little fellow into the open. According to figures given out by Charles A. Hendrickson, chief clerk of the Marriages License Bureau, approximately 100 more couples have appeared before Hendrickson from May 1 to June 3 than during the same period in 1929.

In May, 1930, there were 892 licenses issued as against 840 in May, 1929. Saturday, May 31, was the busiest day so far, with 83 licenses issued and Monday, June 2, a close second with 71.

Theatres

AT THE METROPOLITAN
Stirring action, vivid backgrounds and thrills vie for supremacy in "Prince of Diamonds," Columbia's all-talking attraction, which opened at the Metropolitan Theatre last night.
The trouble all started when Rupert Endon, impoverished English aristocrat, won the affection of Robert Crayle's niece, Eve Marley. Crayle, a wealthy diamond merchant, refused to relinquish his claims; and connived with Adrian Marley, Eve's rascally brother, to put Endon in prison on a false charge. Crayle made Eve's love the price of Endon's release. After Eve had agreed to marry Crayle, Endon upset everything by escaping from the detectives and departing for the Orient.

The hero's adventures in the Far East supply many thrills. He finally returns to London a rich man, makes Crayle pay for trickery, and wins the woman he loves.

Aileen Pringle and Ian Keith head the clever cast of players and deserve much commendation for their handling of their roles. Others who do noteworthy work are Fritz Ridgeway, Gilbert Emery and E. Alyn Warren. Karl Brown deserves special mention for his adroit handling of the screen direction and the deft touches of A. H. Van Buren, stage director who co-operated with Brown, are evident in the talking sequences.

AT THE CLIFTONA
A sensation! That's "Paramount on Parade!" which opened its three day run at the Cliftona Theatre last night. The audience went for it like nothing that's ever been seen in this town before. Applause and laughter shook the house. It is easily one of the cleverest, smartest motion pictures ever made. Some of it is in Technicolor.

Elizabeth Roth Becomes Bride Of Donald Watt

Solemnized by Rev. Richard Watt, father of the groom, the marriage of Miss Elizabeth Roth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Roth of N. Scioto-st., to Mr. Donald Watt, son of Rev. and Mrs. Richard Watt and nephew of Miss Elizabeth Stevenson of Park Place, took place at 8:30 o'clock, Saturday evening at the home of the bride and groom, the single ring ceremony being used. Baskets of pink roses and blue delphiniums arranged against a background of palms and ferns banked the living room fireplace where the nuptial vows were exchanged.

Miss Anna Louise Horney of Chillicothe, school friend of the bride, played Traumerer by Robert Schumann followed immediately by the Lohengrin Wedding March. Miss Mary Roth, maid-of-honor, sister of the bride, descended the stairs followed to the altar by the bride where they were met by the groom and best man, Mr. Alex Stevenson Watt, brother of the groom.

The bride was attired in an ivory satin dress of straight lines the folds of which touched the floor. Her lace and tulle cap, fastened across the back with a wreath of tiny orange blossoms, held the long tulle veil. Her slippers were white moire. The bride's bouquet was a beautiful shower of white roses, lilies of the valley, and orchids tied with tulle ribbons.

Miss Mary Roth was gowned in a lavender flowered net dress with a long full skirt. She carried a bouquet of deep yellow roses. The bride's gifts to her sister and Miss Horney were pearl necklaces which they wore at the wedding.

Following the ceremony was the reception for relatives and close friends of the bride and groom. Seated at the bride's table were maid of honor, Miss Mary Roth, the best man, Mr. Alex Stevenson Watt, Mrs. Alex Watt, Miss Anna Louise Horney, Miss Margaret Weldon, Mr. Howard Stevenson, and Mr. Richard H. Watt.
